

ABSTRACT

Interference within a wireless apparatus is mitigated by adjusting one or more transmission characteristics associated with an interconnect of the apparatus. In at least 5 one embodiment, the interconnect is a PCI Express interconnect.